eDOC Innovations Reports Year-end Earnings

Solid Performance by the Comprehensive Document Imaging Strategy Provider

MIDWAY, UT and GRAND RAPIDS, MI – November 21, 2008

eDOC Innovations (EDI), the nation's leading CUSO for e-document strategies announced its fiscal year closing performance, exceeding expectations for its '2008 fiscal year by over 33%. The unique ownership make-up of three industry leaders, eDOC Innovations, CU*Answers and Corporate One Federal Credit Union, brings both equity and services together and represents over 1,200 cumulative credit unions served through the ownership.

eDOC Innovations services over 400 credit unions through its e-document strategies software, DocLogic, a complete "Go Paperless" platform, which includes both in-house and on-line deliverables, making paperless solutions readily available to credit unions of all sizes.

"I'm very pleased with how our firm has responded to industry needs over the last year. Our financial performance is a clear indicator that credit unions recognize how important having an e-document strategy is, as well as the value of an expert to assist in effectively creating and executing that strategy," explains Bret Weekes, President/ CEO of eDOC Innovations. "We have welcomed approximately 100 credit union Peers into our platforms over the last year and are working with all of our CUSO Peers to build awareness that e-document strategies are now a central part of design for their business plans, not a last minute extension of a completed transaction or a mandatory dictation from a predetermined processing provider."

The impact of eDOC's ownership and strategy will reach deeply throughout the industry. "Innovation is not just a description of our products. It is a mindset that we promote in our business practices as well... this partnership brings together solutions that affect credit union members nationwide in a very personal way," explains Mr. Weekes. "That is what innovation is about and that is what gives our owners and peers the edge to succeed."
